

The suggested project is a result of assessment of our activities in the field of non-formal education. We all feel that some changes need to take place in order to provide effective and sustainable forms of education. The point is to produce educated people rather than life-long learners who are demotivated and disillusioned after the number of tries to learn something.

What we want to foster in this project is teaching and learning which is not a burden but a bridge. We want to formulate such tools which, in future, shall help teachers as well as learners (students) become partners in the process of education and in this mutual understanding reach the point in which the teacher knows exactly what and how to teach and the learners know exactly what they want and why they want it (understanding their own motivation).

Date: 14. – 19. 3. 2016

Venue: Prešov, Slovakia

Form: supervised training/workshop

Groups: 2 groups

Group1. – To-be teachers

Group2. – In-service teachers

Outputs: 2 tools

Tool 1. – questionnaire

Tool 2. – manual for trainers/teachers (how to identify memory types)

Project coordinator:

Katarína Šandorová

katka@saps-no.sk

More info:

www.saps-no.sk/projects

